Mayor Jno. W. Morris informs The Falcon that the city authorities are inaugurating a campaign in Somerville against loafers and that it will be pressed to the point that those loafing on the streets without visible means of support will be taken up and put to work if there is a possible chance for such to be done, and there is no doubt of the state's vagrancy law and the city ordinances giving the authority needed. Good for the administration. May they succeed in toto.

The city authorities are having the weeds cut on the streets as far as it is possible with their means and the labor they can secure. They are meeting with the same difficulty in getting labor that we are all meeting and it is up to the citizens to lend them their help. The Falcon editor has pledged to keep a portion of street much longer than his property clear of weeds for the entire season and we are doing it. One of our neighbors cut his a few days ago. It did not cost either of us much and it helps wonderfully. Every home could have this work done on its part of the streets and assist mightily toward "a city beautiful" idea. Help the authorities.

From reports coming in Tuesday, every part of this county has had good rains within the past week and crops are booming, the late. The corn is later than the cotton and is not as well cultivated, the early corn in most of the county suffered from want of moisture before the rains. Cotton generally is pretty well worked out and is clean and good, tho at least two weeks later than the average for this time of year. The best farmers we have discussed it with, tho, predict a good cotton crop, with a light yield of corn over the county.

Every one not holding a certificate now should take this examination next week, Friday and Saturday.
